

Multi-Container Application

Rodrigo Arango Patiño

This container receives a request from the web server. With that request, it makes a query to the MySQL container's database and returns the result to the web server.

This container receives queries from the backend container and returns the result of the query.

This container sends a request to the backend container. When the backend container answers the request, the web server container shows the results to the user.